Pam Lenker works as a professional performer, choreographer, and teacher in New York City. She has performed in several renowned New York theaters, and has been a featured dancer in the New York City Tap Festival and New York Tap Extravaganza, among other featured roles. Her training includes the legendary Brenda Bufalino, Barbara Duffy, and SYTYCD choreographer Derick Grant, and she has performed choreography by Savion Glover. She guest teaches at Steps on Broadway, and holds a dance residency in the School of United Nations in Manhattan. She is in demand on both coasts as a teacher and choreographer, and is the recipient of several choreography awards. Favorite professional choreography credits include a music video for Nordstrom showcasing their spring line in 2007.
